Excellence in Instruction Course for Faculty – Spring 2024

The Excellence in Instruction course at LCCC is an online and student-centered orientation for faculty that highlights the best teaching practices and policies promoted by the college. Designed to model Quality Matters Rubric standards for online instruction, the course addresses such subjects as inclusive classrooms, course management, compassionate teaching, assessments, instructor workloads, and transparent grading practices. In addition, the course includes videos and assignments from some of LCCC's most respected instructors to inspire and provide practical and course-ready materials to be used as needed in individual instructor's classes no matter the mode of teaching employed.

While the course is self-paced and asynchronous, faculty have the opportunity to interact with their colleagues via discussions and interactive assignments. If you are seeking inspiration, new pedagogical approaches to teaching, and practical assignments to enliven your classrooms and improve student-faculty communications, complete this form to sign up for access to the course. It is delivered via LCCC's Canvas LMS, and participants receive certificates of completion for professional development, in addition to personal enrichment. All faculty are welcome and receive an electronic badge upon successful completion. The course runs this spring from February 5, 2024 – March 8, 2024.

Some Doors on Schnecksville Campus Change to Exit Only

To improve campus safety and control access to buildings on the Schnecksville main campus, certain doors to campus buildings will transition to exit only. This will change the traffic flow of people entering and exiting buildings and will be completed by the time classes start in January 2024. This change also allows Public Safety to more quickly secure a building in the case of an emergency.

Door entrances and exits have already been addressed at the Tamagua and Allentown sites. This is the first phase of a larger plan to improve security and address safety issues, as a result of consultation from the Pennsylvania State Police.

Doors selected to be exit only will be those that minimize the impact to traffic flow. This change will have no impact on automated doors or ADA accessibility.
